At Dell Quay the official route follows the field edge to the road but there is access along the shingle shoreline when the tide is out.

There is a permissive footpath along the shoreline from Chichester Marina to Dell Quay.

The path crosses Birdham Pool (claims to be the oldest marina in the country) and over the old Arun to Portsmouth Canal (1823).

Admire the Harbour homes between Itchenor and Birdham.

Continue to follow the shoreline. The route crosses over a small stream in Fishbourne Meadows.

Finish at Fishbourne Mill Pond.

At the end:
Walk 0.2km to the bus stop in Fishbourne or walk back into Chichester on the following route:
Retrace your steps back into Fishbourne Meadows and take the path east out of the field into another field. Leave via the gateway half way along on the left hand side to reach the A259. Cross the busy road safely and head through the pedestrian underpass under the A27. Keep walking east to reach The Cross in the centre of Chichester. Turn right and walk down South Street back to the start.

Toilets and a viewing platform with benches here.

Chichester Marina claims to be the biggest marina in the country in terms of number of berths.

Walk around the sand dunes of East Head, 2km, either direction (decide by the wind direction).
